REYKJANES

The Reykjanes peninsula is the first part of Iceland most travelers see, since it's the location of the Keflavík international airport. The drive through the peninsula's moss-covered lava fields is a dramatic introduction to Iceland, many people claim it looks like the landscape on the moon. The Reykjanes peninsula is often overlooked but the volcanic landscapes and geothermal areas are a spectacular sight. Also, the Reykjanes peninsula is home to the famous Blue Lagoon!

CAPITAL REGION

HÖFUÐBORGARSVÆÐIÐ

Reykjavík is the world's northernmost capital. Despite its small size, the city is bursting with creative energy and there's always something going on, all year round. Reykjavík differs from most European capitals and cities in that it was mostly built in the 20th century. The modern looking city is surrounded by majestic nature on all sides and the view of mt. Esja from the city centre is a luxury few cities can offer.

WEST ICELAND

VESTURLAND

The west coast is the setting for some of the greatest sagas of the Icelanders, Iceland's biggest contribution to the world's literary heritage. The spirit of classic characters, such as the fierce Egill Skallagrímsson and the headstrong Guðrún Ósvífursdóttir, permeates the atmosphere. In addition to historical events, the west coast boasts natural marvels such as the Hraunfossar waterfalls, Langjökull glacier and Snæfellsnes peninsula. The Snæfellsjökull glacier is a rumoured landing spot for aliens as well as Jules Verne's entrance to the centre of the earth!

WESTFJORDS

VESTFIRÐIR

The most isolated area of Iceland and the oldest part of the country, the landscape of the westfjords is completely unique. Flat-topped mountains slope sharply down to a crystal clear sea and narrow fjords score the shoreline. It's also the most sparsely populated area of Iceland so if your dream vacation includes being alone in Iceland's magnificent nature, interrupted only by the calls of the seabirds, the Westfjords is your perfect destination.

NORTH ICELAND

NORÐURLAND

The landscape of the north of Iceland is characterised by hills, meadows, and magnificent mountains. Spend some time visiting the towns and villages in the area, Hofsós's swimming pool has one of the prettiest views you'll ever see! Akureyri, the largest town outside of the capital area, is known as the capital of the North. This charming small town is a great place to stay in summer and offers first-rate skiing in winter. Akureyri is surrounded by natural beauty on all sides, from the mountains of Tröllaskagi to Lake Mývatn and further beyond to Ásbyrgi national park and the thundering Dettifoss waterfall.

EAST ICELAND

AUSTURLAND

The fishing villages of the east coast are charming pockets of local culture in a rugged landscape cleft with fjords. This remote part of Iceland is filled with hidden treasures and off-the-beaten-path natural wonders. The mountain roads make for a great road trip and if you're lucky, you might even spot a reindeer or two, native to the area.

SUÐURLAND

The most frequently visited area of Iceland is without a doubt the south coast. With good reason, it's where the contrasts of the Icelandic landscape are the clearest. Verdant valleys meet jet black deserts, icy glaciers are streaked with black ash from fiery volcanic eruptions and jagged cliffs drop dramatically to the plains below. The Golden Circle, the waterfalls Skógafoss and Seljalandsfoss, and the Jökulsárlón glacial lagoon are not to be missed!
